INDEX.

VOL. III.

No.

Acastus, on the influence of curiosity ..... 150
Action, dramatic, laws of..... 156
Adversity, a season of salutary instruction ..... 150
——— promotes virtue and happiness..... 150
Advice, when most offensive and ineffectual..... 155
Affability, influence of..... 141
Agriculture, extensive, usefulness of..... 145
Almamoulin, dying speech of his father..... 120
——— thoughtless conduct of..... 120
Amicus's reflections on the deplorable case of prostitutes..... 107
Antiquaries, club of..... 117
Anxieties, universal..... 128
Application, desultory, injurious to our improvement in knowledge and virtue ..... 132
Aristotle, his remarks on tragedy ..... 139
Assurance not always connected with abilities ..... 159
Astronomer, impertinence of an..... 126
Aurengezebe, a tragedy, wherein faulty ..... 125
Austerities and mortifications, their use in religion .... 110
Authors, literary fame of, destined to various measures of duration..... 106, 146
——— principally owing to the influence of curiosity or pride... ..... 106
——— deluded by the hopes of immortal reputation 106
——— their proper rank and usefulness in society... 136
——— necessity of literary courage..... 137
——— an author travelling in quest of his own character..... 146
Authority, the prescriptions of, confounded with the laws of nature ..... 156
——— parental, often exerted with rigour ..... 148

INDEX.

VOL. III.

No.

Acastus, on the influence of curiosity ..... 150
Action, dramatic, laws of..... 156
Adversity, a season of salutary instruction ..... 150
——— promotes virtue and happiness..... 150
Advice, when most offensive and ineffectual..... 155
Affability, influence of..... 141
Agriculture, extensive, usefulness of..... 145
Almamoulin, dying speech of his father..... 120
——— thoughtless conduct of..... 120
Amicus's reflections on the deplorable case of prostitutes..... 107
Antiquaries, club of..... 117
Anxieties, universal..... 128
Application, desultory, injurious to our improvement in knowledge and virtue ..... 132
Aristotle, his remarks on tragedy ..... 139
Assurance not always connected with abilities ..... 159
Astronomer, impertinence of an..... 126
Aurengezebe, a tragedy, wherein faulty ..... 125
Austerities and mortifications, their use in religion .... 110
Authors, literary fame of, destined to various measures of duration..... 106, 146
——— principally owing to the influence of curiosity or pride... ..... 106
——— deluded by the hopes of immortal reputation 106
——— their proper rank and usefulness in society... 136
——— necessity of literary courage..... 137
——— an author travelling in quest of his own character..... 146
Authority, the prescriptions of, confounded with the laws of nature ..... 156
——— parental, often exerted with rigour ..... 148

No.
Bacon, Lord, opinion of his moral essays..... 106
Bashfulness sometimes the effect of studious retirement..... 157, 159
——— frequently produced by too high an opinion of our own importance..... 159
——— remedies of..... 159
Beauty, disadvantages incident to such as are celebrated for it..... 130
——— folly of anxiety about it..... 130
——— miseries of a beauty..... 133
Benefits not always entitled to gratitude..... 149
Boerhaave, his reflections on the execution of criminals..... 114
Books, the study of, not sufficient to literary eminence 154
Boyle, Robert, philosophy improved by his discoveries 106
Busy, Mrs. her singular character..... 138

Camilla, in Virgil, her affected disrelish of her own sex..... 115
Caution, its connection with hope..... 119
Charybdis, her disposition to profuse expenses..... 115
Cicero, his reflections on the vanity of transitory applause..... 118
——— on the importance of being acquainted with past transactions..... 154
Clarendon, Earl of, excellence of his History of the Rebellion..... 122
Climacterics of the mind..... 152
Comedy, on the composition of..... 125
Conduct, absurdity of, whence arising..... 135
Controversy, short-lived fame of the writers of..... 106
Country, folly of annual retreats into..... 135
——— original characters to be found in the..... 138
Courage, literary, necessity of..... 137
Courtier, manner of a..... 147
Cowardice, universality of..... 126
——— folly of..... 129
Criticism, the art of, regulated by fluctuating principles..... 158
Curiosity, of powerful operation..... 118
——— the first and last passion in great and generous minds..... 150

Dedications, indiscriminate, meanness and mischief of 136
Definition, in what respect not the province of man... 125

XUM

INDEX.

No.

Definition, the neglect of, prejudicial to the writers of plays..... 125
Dentatus, his address to Tranquilla..... 119
Despair, considerations proposed to prevent..... 129
Detractors, various species of..... 144
Diffidence, influence of, in a debate..... 159
Dilatoriness, fatal effects of, in important affairs..... 134
Diligence relaxed by applause..... 111
——— often obstructed by friendship..... 111
——— too soon relaxed..... 127
Discontent attending every state of life..... 128

Education, errors in the conduct of..... 109, 132
——— instances of remissness and irregularity of. 133
——— difficulty of educating a young nobleman... 132
Epistolary writings, difficulty and excellence of..... 152
——— direction for..... 152
Erasmus, his diligent and unwearied improvement of time..... 108
Eriphile, excessive peevishness of..... 112
Events, some of the most considerable produced by slender causes..... 141
Eumathes on the errors of modern education..... 132
Excellence, practical and ideal widely different..... 112
Existence, every stage to be distinguished by improvement..... 155
Expectation, the torment of, greatest in the early seasons of life..... 111

Fame, short duration of, when ill founded..... 154
——— the acquisition and loss of..... 146
Fear of death, in what cases it characterises a coward 126
——— not intended to overbear reason, but to assist it..... 126
——— national indulgence of..... 130
Ferocula, her ungoverned passions..... 113
Flattery, most successful when accommodated to particular circumstances or characters..... 106
——— the fatal effects of..... 155
Florentulus, irregular education of..... 109
Flosculus, manner of his addresses to Tranquilla..... 119
Fop, education of a..... 109
Fortune, treatment incurred by the loss of..... 153
Fungosa, his addresses to Tranquilla..... 119

Gain, desire of, the general passion..... 131

No.

Garret, advantages of a, for contemplation and improvement ..... 117
Genius, importance of consulting in the choice of a station in life ..... 116
——— inefficacy of, without learning ..... 154
God, his placability, an essential principle of all religion ..... 110
Good-nature, extensive influence of ..... 141
Gratitude, benefits not always entitled to ..... 149

Habit, danger of ..... 155
Happiness, the fruition of it not dependent on our sensations ..... 150
——— derived from self-approbation and the applause of conscience ..... 150
——— female, by what anxieties it is often disturbed ..... 128
Health, how to be preserved ..... 112
Hesitation, the effect of insolence and divided attention ..... 134
History, difficulty of writing a good one ..... 122
——— England, barren of historical genius ..... 122
Honours, transitory, Cicero's reflection on ..... 118
Hope, to be cherished when an incitement to industry 117
Hymenæus, his amours and marriage with Tranquilla 113, 114
Hyperdulus, account of his treatment by his relations 149
Hypertatus, his reflections on the advantages of a garret ..... 117

Impatience of study, the mental disease of the present generation ..... 154
Imperia, her ambition and pride ..... 115
Inactivity and cowardice, folly of ..... 119
Indolence, the difficulty of being reformed from ..... 155
Ingratitude, the peculiar baseness of ..... 149
——— the effect of great depravity of mind ..... 149
Justice, the exercise of, to be softened by prudence and lenity ..... 114

Knolles, Sir Francis, his History of the Turks, excellence of ..... 122

Ladies, several of the degrading qualities of, described in characters ..... 113
——— misery of, in a summer retirement ..... 124

INDEX.

No.

Laziness commonly associated with timidity..... 134
Learning the proper business of youth ..... 108
——— wherein the chief art of it consists ..... 137
——— degraded by indecent and promiscuous dedication ..... 136
——— men of learning by various actions exposed to contempt..... 137
——— their condescension and affability sources of great esteem..... 137
Life, the numerous blessings of, to be esteemed as means of happiness..... 111
—— sufficient to all purposes, if well employed..... 108
Luxury, the veterans of, addicted to resentment and fury ..... 112

Mankind, their desires more numerous than their attainments ..... 104
Marriage, officiousness of some in promoting, censured 115
Merit, real, the persecutors of, distinguished into various classes..... 144
Milton's Samson Agonistes, remarks on..... 139, 140
Mind, rise and progress of its dispositions and faculties 151
—— medicines for its distempers often unpleasing to the taste..... 159
Misocapelus, events which discouraged him from engaging in trade..... 116
——— His appearance in the character of a wit 123
Misocolax, his censure of unmerited praise..... 126
Misothea, her fondness for disputation..... 113
Moderation, man of, his character..... 144

Narration, historical, the difficulty of this kind of writing illustrated..... 122
Nicety, too much, not to be indulged..... 112
Nitella, her excessive nicety censured..... 115
Nobleman, young, difficulty of educating..... 132
Novelty, a source of pleasing gratification..... 135
Nouradin, his dying address to his son Almamoulin..... 120

Oppression, domestic, the terror of..... 148

Papilius, his account of the ingredients necessary to form a wit..... 141
Peevish fellow, the source of affliction to his dependents..... 112
Peevishness, preservative and remedy against..... 112

| | No. |
|---|---|
| Perseverance, necessary to eminence in learning | 137 |
| Plagiarism, the charge of, consists in choice | 135 |
| Pleasures of contemplation and virtue preferable to those of the senses | 124 |
| Poetry, epic, remarks on | 158 |
| ——— lyric, its origin and manner | 158 |
| Politian, his poetical compositions censured for vanity and self-esteem | 127 |
| Power, the effect of necessity | 129 |
| Praise, unmerited, the practice of giving, censured | 126 |
| ——— excellency of that which is truly deserved | 136 |
| ——— integrity and judgment with which it ought to be dispensed | 136 |
| Precedent, implicit submission to, unreasonable | 135 |
| Prosperantia, her letter on the alteration of the style | 107 |
| Prosperity often productive of infelicity | 150 |
| ——— obstructs the knowledge of ourselves | 150 |
| Prostitutes, reflections on their infamous and deplorable condition | 107 |
| Prudence, wherein its province lies | 112 |
| Punishments, capital, the severity and frequency of, disapproved | 114 |
| ——— often prevent the detection of the crime | 114 |
| Raleigh, Sir Walter, defects of his History of the World | 122 |
| Religion, remission of sins a fundamental truth of | 110 |
| Repentance, doctrine of, embarrassed by superstition | 110 |
| ——— wherein true repentance consists | 110 |
| Reputation, industry and caution necessary to the support of | 129 |
| ——— tainted, the greatest calamity | 157 |
| ——— difficulty of raising | 144 |
| Retirement, rural, the motives of some men to desire it | 138 |
| Riches, the general desire of, whence | 131 |
| ——— the peace of life too often destroyed by struglings for | 131 |
| ——— true use of | 120 |
| Roarer, character of a | 144 |
| Rural life, sketch of the pleasures of | 135 |
| Samson Agonistes, criticism on | 139 |
| Scholar, complaint of his own bashfulness | 157 |
| Science, the paths of, narrow and difficult | 121 |
| ——— the progress of, obstructed by servile imitation | 129 |
| Seasons, the changes of, productive of varied pleasures | 124 |
| Sebastian, King of Portugal, a tragedy, criticism on | 125 |

INDEX.

| | No. |
|---|---|
| Self-knowledge, its importance | 155 |
| ——— frequently obstructed by self-love | 155 |
| ——— folly of opposing our own convictions | 155 |
| Shakspeare, his eminent success in tragi-comedy | 156 |
| Similitudes, a general and remote similitude in the disposition and behaviour of mankind | 151 |
| Solitude, peculiar pleasures of | 135 |
| Spenser, some imitations of his diction censured | 121 |
| Studies, imbecility of spirit incident to studious persons | 157 |
| Style, alteration of the style of the year humorously displayed | 107 |
| THRASO, his reflections on the influence of fear and fortitude | 126 |
| Time, the negligent waste of, censured | 108 |
| ——— ought to be spent with frugality | 108, 111 |
| Tragedy, criticism on the composition of | 125 |
| Tragi-comedy, nature and design of | 156 |
| ——— Shakspeare's excellence in | 156 |
| Tranquilla, her courtships and marriage | 119 |
| VAGULUS, his account of Squire Bluster | 142 |
| Vanity, its tendency to idleness | 154 |
| Venustulus, his unmanly and timid conduct | 126, 119 |
| Verecundulus, the infelicities he suffered from bashfulness | 157 |
| Victoria, her letter on the pride of beauty | 130 |
| ——— mortifications arising from the loss of it | 133 |
| Virgil, the plan of his Eneid formed upon the writings of Homer | 121 |
| ——— exceptions to some of his imitations of Homer | 121 |
| Usefulness, public, should be the object of our diligent endeavours | 129 |
| WEALTH, why the object of general desire | 131 |
| ——— the ease of, in disappointments | 153 |
| Whisperer, character of | 144 |
| Wits, affected, the meanness of their character | 128, 141 |
| Writers, petty, not to be despised | 145 |
| Writing, laws of, not always indisputable | 156 |
| ——— rules of, drawn from examples | 158 |
| YOUTH, a time of enterprise and hope | 111 |
| ——— delighted with sprightliness and ardour | 113 |

C. WHITTINGHAM, Printer,
Goswell-Street.

XUM